PLAYING UP TO THE TEACHER

Indianapolis Youngster Had a Pretty Shrewd Idea of What He Was Doing, After All.

John Arthur is a pupil in a Jeffersonville departmental school, and had to write an essay on Woodrow Wilson, among others. He evinced such a high regard for the president, especially in his management of the world war, as to express the view that he was even greater than Washington or Lincoln. He said they made a fine showing in the little wars they had to handle, but could hardly, he thought, have got through the big one. His father, seeing the essay, ventured the opinion that the writer was too positive in his statement, although admiring Wilson himself. John Arthur showed he was perhaps something of a diplomat as well as an essayist.

"Oh, well," he remarked, "the teacher is a Democrat, anyhow."—Indianapolis News.

There was bad blood between the parish clerk and the minister of a certain country church. Neither of them ever missed a chance of getting a bit of his own back.

One Sunday the clerk had a special invitation out to church with a friend after the evening service, whereupon he asked the minister if he would mind keeping his sermon short.

It was too good a chance to miss. The minister took a few deep breaths, and preached for one hour and a quarter by the clock.

By this time the old clerk's wrath was at boiling point. He hardly waited for the preacher to resume his seat before springing up and announcing loudly:

"Psalm one hundred and nineteen. Fro' end t' end. He's preached all evening, and we'll slug all next!"—London Answers.
